

Order of Lolth Increasing Presence Across The Underdark

Few things strike as much terror into a populace as the sight of the the Order of Lolth marching through the streets. This strikes particularly true for the dreaded Paladins of Zanassu who have known taken to using fearsome creatures to ride into battle.

It appears that no longer content with sating their blood lust in battle, these devotees of Zanassu are now riding these creatures through our once peaceful cities, most recently sighted within Uzzi City.

In recent months the Order has announced the ordination of several new Paladins into the Order of Lolth, a new Priestess, and have even recovered the infamous

Will of Lolth. It is now widely believed that the Order of Lolth is undergoing an intense recruitment push, replenishing their ranks after several tough wars and devastating losses.

Some are concerned that such a push within the faithful of Lolth has historically been indictive of the Order of Lolth beginning a violent assault against heretical faiths in favour of true and direct worship of Lolth.

The founding city of Telantiwar fell shortly after the first great purge of the Underdark. With the city having been secured once again, will we see another purge of the unfaithful and return to ancient tradition?
